It is said among the buyers that the strike among the cloak and suit makers caused the importation of more one-piece frocks and topcoats than ever. Paris, of course, was intouch with this situation in America, beause it was especially harassing to the manufacturers of suits who went there early in the summer to get their models. As it is, the strike was settled in time for the country to be supplied with as many tailored suits as it desired, but it would have been a sorry mess if a large importation of French coat suits had arrived here in September without any chance of their being copied.

Gowns With Redingotes.

Probably this fashion has brought back the redingote effect in handsome gowns, or it may be the influence of the eighteen century which is getting a strong hold on fashion and which calls for skirts that swing out at the sides over a petticoat of a different material in front.

The sketch of today shows a French gown that carries out this old idea in a modern way. The front of the petticoat and the bodice are of dull silver mesh lace, mounted on a foundation of oyster gray satin. The redingote is of dull blue satin.

Special Correspondence of The Star.

NEW YORK, September 20.—We had every reason to believe that the day of the redingote was finished, for it was used up in such a variety of methods last season. Topcoats worn over gowns were unfastened in front, so that they could swing away from the skirt in the form of a redingote. Afternoon gowns had floating side panels that blew away from petticoats made with wide tucks. Slim, one-piece gowns of chiffon had overskirts at side and back of satin, soutached at the edges.

This does not begin to be a summary of the various ways in which the redingote was advocated. "Surely," we said to ourselves after fifteen months of it, "there will be an end to this

Peter Surprises His Friends.

The Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind were tired of playng by themselves. "Let's go play with Striped Chipmunk!" cried one. No sooner was it proposed than away they raced across the Green Meadows up to the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard nearest to the Green Forest. It did not take them long to find Striped Chipmunk. He was racing along the old wall as if his life depended on it.

"Come play with us!" shouted the Merry Little Breezes, dancing around Striped Chipmunk.

Striped Chipmunk.

"Too busy. Too much to do," mumbled Striped Chipmunk, for his cheeks were stuffed with nuts so that he could hardly speak at all. With that he whisked out of sight between the stones of the old wall. Presently he was out again scampering back toward the Green Forest. The Merry Little Breezes raced along with him, teasing him to play, but he merely snapped his bright eyes at them and repeated that he was too busy; and this was all they could get out of him.

The same thing happened when they tried to get Chatterer the Red Squirrel to play, and again when they hunted up Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel. Johnny Chuck couldn't stop stuffing himself long enough to play. He said that it was almost time for him to go to sleep for the winter and he simply must get a little more fat to take him through. Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Pessum were asieep in their hollow trees. Prickly Porky the Porcupine never would play, anyway, so' it was of no use to look for him. Paddy the Beaver was hard at work cutting a supply of wood on the shore of his pond deep in the Green Forest and sinking it near his house, where he could get it in the winter when the pond was frozen over. He said that this was no time for playing and refused to stop working even to talk. Jerry Muskrat, down in the Smilling Pool, was just as busy. Even the birds which had not already started for the far-away Southland were too busy making up parties for the long journey.

Most of us look on a clove as some thing to thrust into the side of a pickled peach, and in this position it is not very tempting. For a clove is not in itself very good to eat. It is the flavor that is in it that is worth while.

Cloves make an admirable flavoring igent in stews. Add one or two cloves when the meat is put on the fire, and, if possible, removed before the stew is served. In lamb, mutton or beef the clove flavor is very good.

In some sorts of soup, too, clove fla to some sorts of soup, too, clove flavoring is delicious. Add a single clove to tomatoes that are simmering for tomato soup, and strain it out when rubbing the tomatoes through a sieve. Or add a clove occasionally to beef or mutton stock for soup. Like bay leaves, cloves must be used sparingly. For too much of the clove is unpleasant.
